ALBANIAFaction within the Communist Party.

The following report is based on comments by various members of the National Committee for Free Albania - and is, of course, merely expressive of their opinions.

1. Soon after the Communist Party took power it became apparent that within its structure there were three groups at war with each other. The first group led by Enver Hoxha included Mehmet Shehu, Bedri Spahiu, Tuk Jakova, Nako Spiro, and Liri Belishova. In the second under Koci Xoxe were Nesti Kerenxhi, Kristo Themelko, and Ramdane Qitaku. The third group, known as The Independents, included Shefqet Benja, Dr. Sezani, Sued Asslani and Gjergj Kokoshi. The last group were not believers in the Communist creed and are reputed to have asked their colleagues for early free elections. As a group they no longer exist, Benja and Sezani having been condemned to death and executed.
2. Koci Xoxe and his followers were ousted from power when Tito split with the Cominform. Xoxe himself was condemned to death and the others imprisoned for their pro-Titoist views.
3. At the moment the first group is itself split into two factions; the first composed of Enver Hoxha, Shefqet Peci, Omer Nishani Liri Belishova, Manol Konomi, Medar Shtylla, Myslim Peza, Haxhi Lleshi and Beqir Balluku, the second of Mehmet Shehu, Bedri Spahiu, Hysni Kapo, Tuk Jakova, Gogo Nushi, Kahreman Ylli, and Xhavid Qese.
4. These two factions are believed to be afraid of a full trial of strength. They fear that in bringing down their opponents they may cause the complete collapse of the government.
